I'm a senior instructor at SQU/CPS. I was born in Cyprus but lived and worked for the most of my life in Istanbul, Turkey. I have been working as an English instructor for 30 years now. Throughout my career, I have been at several positions apart from being an instructor- testing member/head, curriculum member/head, assistant to the department head- and I have had the opportunity to use, change, adapt techniques, approaches, programs, and systems. Along with highly motivated and successful students, I have met hundreds of students struggling, demotivated, full of barriers to learn a foreign language and I believe the success of a teacher lies mainly in the latter group of students. I have tried many different techniques, strategies, teaching styles to help the second group of students and I have realized some common problems resulting in such challenges in learning a foreign language. This is one of my major interests in my career: to help those who face challenges in their learning process. Additionally, as language educators, we face new generations each year; hence, we need to adapt ourselves to the new generations, systems, approaches, techniques in our teaching. Therefore, I always try to follow the new trends and see if they are applicable into our world of language teaching. As technology has become an inseparable part of our lives, I also look into how to implement this into our teaching. With one of my colleagues, I wrote a research paper about this and presented it at a conference at Bahrain University in 2019. I believe that we should continue to investigate as we are moving into an era where everything is becoming online and search for ways to become more efficient in remote teaching.
